RODENTICIDE REFRESHER

Poisoning from rodenticides is one of the most common types of intoxications managed by Pet Poison Helpline. Many different types of rodenticides are available in a wide variety of colors (i.e. green, blue, tan, red, beige) and formulations (i.e. bait blocks, soft baits, pellets, grain-based baits, etc.). Too add to the confusion, different rodenticides may look alike and have similar names, but contain very different types of poison. Due to changing regulations, most pets are now exposed to bromethalin or cholecalciferol (Vit D) baits, not anticoagulants. Accurate identification of the active ingredient is crucial as this will determine the risk of poisoning and the need for treatment.

Learn more about the most common rodenticide active ingredients/ingredient classes, along with their mechanism of action, clinical signs of poisoning, and treatment options.
